Poor Workers Lean to Obama

Post poll: Low-wage employees skeptical of economic fix

Democratic Sen. Barack Obama holds a 2-to-1 edge over Republican Sen. John McCain among the nation's low-wage workers, but many are unconvinced that either presidential candidate would be better than the other at fixing the ailing economy or improving the health care system, according to a new national poll.

Obama's advantage is attributable largely to overwhelming support from two traditional Democratic constituencies: African Americans and Hispanics. But even among white workers, Obama leads McCain by 10 percentage points, 47 percent to 37 percent.

Still, one in six of the white workers polled remains uncommitted to either candidate, according to the new national poll by The Washington Post, the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation and Harvard University. And a majority of those polled, both whites and minorities, are ambivalent about the impact of the election, saying no matter who wins, their personal finances are unlikely to change.

The new poll included interviews with 1,350 randomly selected workers 18 to 64 years old who put in at least 30 hours a week but earned $27,000 or less last year. As a group, they are somewhat less likely to be Republicans than all adults under age 65 and are also less likely to be registered to vote. MICHAEL D. SHEAR AND JON COHEN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Teen Declares Gray 'It' Color for Fall

A 12-year-old girl fell into a chimney on the roof of her apartment building, plummeted 14 stories down the flue and landed almost unscathed in a pile of furnace soot. Grace Bergere remained hospitalized Saturday for treatment of an injured hip. The 2-foot-deep pile of ash and dust may have saved her life, cushioning her fall when she crashed into a basement furnace, fire officials said. Authorities said Grace was showing a cousin, visiting from California, the spectacular view of the city from the top of her family's West Village apartment building, which has a rooftop deck overlooking the Hudson River. ## Neighborhood Needs Target, Best Buy

One Cincinnati landlord is so exasperated by street crime outside his building that he's posted a large sign announcing "Drugs & Sex for Sale 24/7." John Wallen says most tenants have fled his apartment building because of drug-dealing and prostitution on the street. The large sign urges passers-by to call the City Council to help get the area cleaned up. Councilwoman Roxanne Qualls says Wallen has every right to be angry. She says police should be more aggressive about cracking down on the drug sellers and prostitutes on Wallen's block and promises to take the matter up with the police chief. (AP) must still authenticate the record, a process that could take months. The boys, ages 8 to 11, decided to try to beat the bouncing record of 19 hours and 24 minutes, set nearly two years ago. (AP)

DNA Led to Anthrax Suspect Link

Source: Victims' cells helped tie scientist's lab to 2001 attacks

WASHINGTON | DNA taken from the bodies of people killed in the 2001 anthrax attacks helped lead investigators to Bruce Ivins, who oversaw the highly specific type of toxin in an Army lab, a government scientist said Sunday.

Using new genome technology, researchers looked at samples of cells from the victims to identify the kind of anthrax Ames strain that killed them, the scientist said. They noticed very subtle differences in the DNA of the strain used in the attacks than in other types of Ames anthrax.

With that, investigators linked the specific type of anthrax back to Ivins' biological weapons lab at Ft. Detrick in Frederick, Md., where he oversaw its use and handling for research.

"It had to do with the very specific characteristics in the DNA of the letters and what was in Bruce's labs," said the government scientist, who is close to the investigation. "They were cultures he was personally responsible for."

The scientist spoke on condition of anonymity because he is not authorized to speak to reporters.

The scientific discovery gave the FBI its first solid break in one of the nation's most high-profile unsolved crimes. Combined with other evidence, the Justice Department is expected to close the case this week, concluding that Ivins was the sole criminal behind the attacks that killed five and sickened 17 others in the weeks following the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks.

Ivins killed himself last week as prosecutors prepared to indict him on murder charges.

Dozens of other researchers in Ivins' lab also had access to the type of Ames strain used in the attacks, the scientist said, meaning the DNA alone is not enough to prove his guilt. LARA JAKES JORDAN (AP)

Study: Hormone Eases AIDS Complications

CHICAGO | A hormone better known for illicit use among athletes can help treat troublesome complications from the AIDS virus, but with potentially risky side effects, a small study found.

Low-dose injections of human growth hormone, HGH, reduced fat deposits around internal abdominal organs by about 10 percent.

Hormone shots lowered blood pressure and levels of blood fats called triglycerides. But they also resulted in elevated blood sugar levels.

HIV patients often develop fat deposits and high levels of cholesterol, triglycerides and blood sugar, which put them at risk for heart problems. Doctors believe this results from HIV drugs and a faulty immune system caused by the infection.

Medicines can treat some of these complications, but fat build-ups, which can affect other parts of the body, are harder to fix, although a healthy diet and exercise help.

The study appears in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association. LINDSEY TANNER (AP)

Battleground States Shift

Obama tries to woo voters in 7 historically Republican bastions

WASHINGTON | Alaska is young. Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia have growing populations and many black voters. Montana has seen recent Democratic inroads, and North Dakota has sent only Democrats to Congress since 1986. Indiana borders Sen. Barack Obama's home state.

The Democratic presidential candidate is putting money and manpower into all seven of these states — at levels unmatched by Republican rival Arizona Sen. John McCain.

For decades, these states have almost exclusively voted for Republican candidates and have rarely seen any campaign action.

Now, thanks in part to demographic and political shifts, they are emerging as new battlegrounds of the 2008 campaign.

"We have the organizational ability and the financial ability to compete there," Obama campaign manager David Plouffe said recently. "There is not a head fake among them."

Undeterred, senior McCain

strategist Steve Schmidt said: "We feel very confident about holding these states." He also expressed optimism that McCain can win several Democratic-leaning perennial swing targets.

In the seven historically GOP bastions, Obama has run five weeks' worth of TV ads and dispatched dozens of workers to sign up legions of unregistered voters who his campaign believes can be persuaded to support the Illinois senator. Among their targets are blacks and young people, two constituencies that favor Obama but historically have been unreliable voters. LIZ SIDOTI (AP)

Detroit Mayor Scandal Complicates Congressional Race

WASHINGTON | Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick's name will not appear on primary ballots Tuesday in Michigan, but voters could decide whether his mother should bear any of the fallout from a scandal that has galvanized city hall.

Rep. Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick, D-Mich., faces a challenge in a three-way congressional primary that has centered on the mayor's conduct and on tough talk about who can best represent the struggling district.

Kilpatrick

The 38-year-old mayor and his former top aide are charged with perjury, misconduct and obstruction of justice, all connected to their testimony in a civil trial last year. They denied having a romantic relationship, but those claims have been contradicted by text messages in a scandal that has dominated news coverage in Detroit for months.

Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick was elected to the U.S. House in 1996 after nearly two decades in the state Legislature. She has faced little opposition in a Democratic district.

Yet, primary candidate and former state Rep. Mary Waters has repeatedly referred to the felony charges against the mayor. In a scathing ad, she criticized the congresswoman for defending him. (AP)

If You Don't Have To Pay It Back, It's Actually FREE Money!

Learn About FREE-MONEY Grants, Low-Interest Loans & Government Subsidies
To Buy a Home! To Start or Expand a Business! To Invest in Real Estate!

Did you know that the government gives away billions of dollars to eligible individuals in the form of free-money grants, low interest loans and subsidies to buy their first home, to start or expand a business, or invest in real estate? Would you like to learn how to qualify to receive a share of this multi-billion dollar give-away?

The U.S. Congress has budgeted billions of dollars in Federal Grants-In-Aid for this year, and more money is available today than ever before. There are more than 30 federal agencies that distribute this money through 15,000+ programs at the federal, state and local level. This is opportunity money designed to stimulate the economy and empower people to help themselves.

According to Tomas Bilbao, Former Deputy Director of Operations for the Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD), "...these government grants allow people to go from being renters to homeowners, from being employees to employers. Thousands of people take advantage of these grants every year. The money is there and it's available."

So, are you ready to learn what it takes to be eligible for this money? Are you willing to learn how to give the government what it wants in order to qualify and get what you want?

By National Grants Conferences

Local Introductory Conferences will be sponsored by National Grants Conferences (NGC) this coming week in your area. NGC maintains a terrific team of over 150 employees, instructors and trainers to serve your needs.

With offices in Boca Raton, Florida, and a research team and customer support center in Rochester, New York, NGC has been teaching people how to access the government grant, loan, and subsidy system since 1998. Discover how you can too by making plans to attend a Conference near you (see below). Admission is free, seating is limited and reservations are required.

Buy Your First Home

The hottest news in almost every small and large city in the country is that there is a ton of money now available through many programs that provide grants and subsidized loans to help families buy their first home. If you qualify, you can use this money for a down payment to buy your first home, up to $50,000 in some areas.

At the same time you might be able to apply for a free money grant to fix up your purchase and follow it up with a government subsidized mortgage to make your monthly payments truly affordable.

According to Oscar Anderson, former Deputy Chief of Staff for HUD and co-author of the nation's most successful initiative to promote homeownership, "the American Dream Down Payment Program has put tens of thousands of people in homes with no money down - fully funded by the government. National Grants makes the money very real and accessible."

Invest In Real Estate

For the real estate investors, the government has money to revitalize the communities in big cities and rural communities. Redevelopment areas historically have the greatest rate of appreciation. So, if you truly want a great chance of becoming wealthy, invest in redevelopment areas. You can make more money when the markets are bad or moving sideways than in up real estate markets because that's when you can buy bargain properties.

In some markets real estate prices are going down and foreclosures are at an all-time record high. The government has programs allowing you to take advantage of these opportunities as well.

Start Or Expand Your Own Business

Nike, Fed Ex, Intel, Ben & Jerry's, Quiznos, Jenny Craig and Columbia Sportswear (to name just a few!) all started with government subsidized loans from the SBA (Small Business Administration). The SBA has been told to get the billions allocated this year for business development pumped back into the economy.

The result? Funding programs for business start-up and expansion are at an all-time high. Billions of dollars have been distributed to eligible individuals through programs offering astonishingly favorable low-interest loan terms, as well as lucrative government subsidies (e.g., equipment & training grants) and government contracting opportunities, with mandatory set-asides for groups and areas specifically targeted for growth. And the best part? More money is available now than ever before! But knowing how to access these dollars is the key.

"It's tough to navigate through the federal government," says former SBA Deputy Administrator, Melanie Sablehaus. "NGC can open doors for you; they can help you think big and bold and show you how to do business with the U.S. Government. All you have to do is find your way to a local conference so you can understand what to do and how to get it done."

Real estate agent Margaret Trautmann stands near a home for sale in Muttontown, N.Y. The economy is hurting even the wealthy, whose homes are dropping in value.

Wealthiest Curb Spending Habits

Even the nation's rich are being more thrifty amid economic slump

BOSTON | The rich are sharing America's financial pain — and contributing to it.

It may have taken longer and it may not be as acute as for the middle class, but there are early hints that the economic slump is crimping the lifestyles of rich Americans.

They are investing more conservatively, spending less on luxury goods and are being more thrifty with their credit cards. Many are asking their personal shoppers and private-jet travel providers to seek the best deals rather than over-the-top extravaganzas.

That news may produce a shrug from people who have lost their jobs or homes in this economy. The problem is that when the wealthy get stingy, it trickles down.

"It's a sluggish economy, and its difficulties are felt all over," said Joseph DiRenzo, a married 38-year-old father of three who left a hedge fund two years ago to enter commercial real estate.

The problem is that when the wealthy get stingy, it trickles down.

DiRenzo says he's feeling the hit in the value of his six-bedroom house on Long Island.

It can be had for $7 million — a good deal, he says, when you consider his next-door neighbor's comparable home sold for $9 million last fall. He's cut the price twice in the 12 months it's been on the market.

Al-Qaeda Explosives Chief Dead

Group confirms USS Cole suspect, 3 other top figures were killed

CAIRO, EGYPT | Al-Qaeda confirmed Sunday the death of a top commander accused of training the suicide bombers who killed 17 American sailors on the USS Cole eight years ago.

Abu Khabab al-Masri, who had a $5 million bounty on his head from the United States, is believed to have been killed in an airstrike apparently launched by the United States in Pakistan last week.

al-Masri

An al-Qaeda statement posted on the Internet said al-Masri and three other top figures were killed and warned of vengeance for their deaths. It did not say when, where or how they died but that some of their children were killed along with them.

Pakistani authorities have said they believe al-Masri is one of six killed in an airstrike on July 28 on a compound in a lawless tribal region near the Afghan border.

The U.S. military has not confirmed it was behind the strike. But similar U.S. attacks are periodically launched on militant targets in the region. (AP)

A Tragic Scene at Indian Shrine

Rumors of landslide spark stampede that kills 145 worshippers

NEW DELHI | Thousands of panicked pilgrims stampeded Sunday at a remote mountaintop temple in northern India during celebrations to honor a Hindu goddess, sending dozens of people plummeting to their deaths and trampling scores more. Police said 145 people were killed.

Rumors of a landslide apparently started the panic at the shrine in the foothills of the Himalayas, said C.P. Verma, a senior government official in the Bilaspur district.

Pilgrims already at the Naina Devi Temple began running down the narrow path leading from the peak. There, they collided with devotees winding their way up.

With a concrete wall on one side and a precipice on the other, there was nowhere to escape, and they were crushed. At one point, a guard rail broke and dozens of people fell to their deaths.

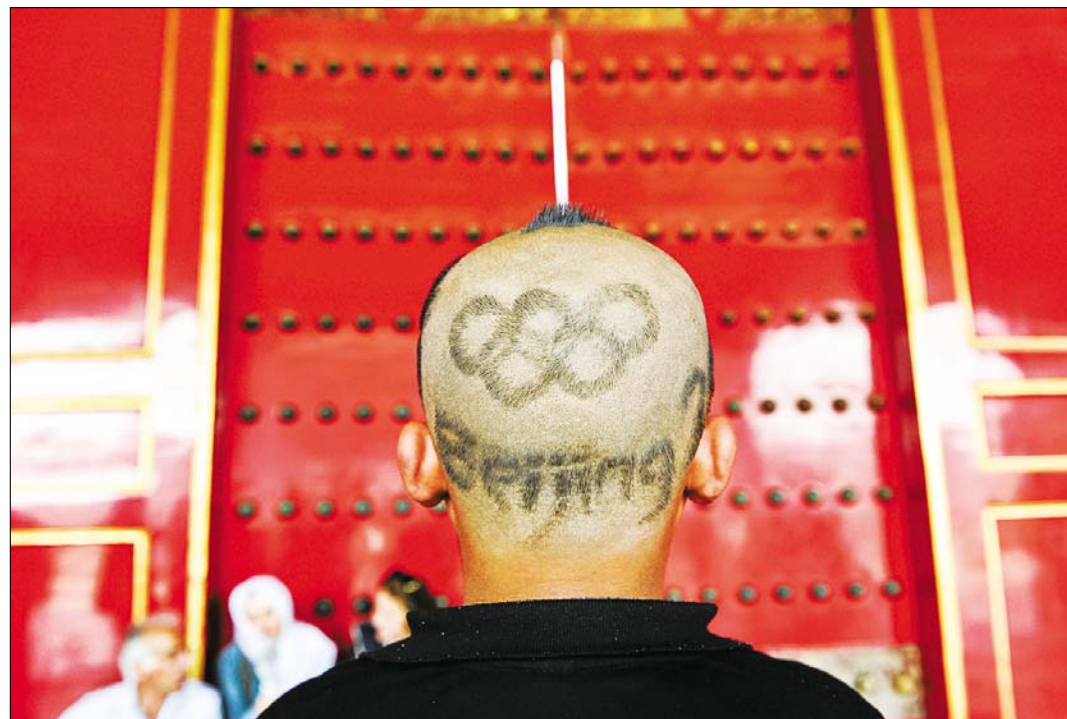

The bodies of the devotees — many dressed in brightly colored holiday clothes — carpeted the path, intertwined with flattened iron railings. Many still held the flowers and food they planned to offer at the temple.

Police said they used a cable car at the shrine to ferry some of the bodies down, and helicopters flew in to take the wounded to hospitals.

Tens of thousands of worshippers had flocked to the remote temple in the foothills of the Himalayas to celebrate Shraavan Navratras, a nine-day festival that honors the Hindu goddess Shakrti, or divine mother. GAVIN RABINOWITZ (AP)

Solzhenitsyn, Chronicler of the Gulag, Dies at 89

MOSCOW | Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the Nobel Prize-winning author whose books chronicled the horrors of the Soviet gulag system, has died of heart failure, his son said Monday. He was 89.

Stepan Solzhenitsyn told The Associated Press his father died late Sunday but declined further comment.

Solzhenitsyn's unflinching accounts of torment and survival in the Soviet Union's slave labor camps riveted his countrymen, whose secret history he exposed. They earned him 20 years of bitter exile but international renown.

And they inspired millions, perhaps, with the knowledge that one person's courage and integrity could, in the end, defeat the totalitarian machinery of an empire. (AP)

Avalanche hits group of climbers on descent from 2nd-highest peak

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | At least nine climbers are feared dead and five others are missing on K-2, the world's second-highest peak and long considered even more challenging than Mount Everest, officials said Sunday.

An avalanche struck a group of climbers on their way down after scaling the mountain in northern Pakistan, and at least six of them died. Three other mountaineers were reported to have died over the weekend in separate incidents.

In addition, five climbers from another expedition were missing, said Mohammed Akram, vice president of the Adventure Foundation of Pakistan, a nonprofit organization.

Akram said the six climbers died when they were hit by an "ice cornice" or snow crashing off an overhang on K-2 during the mountaineers' climb down.

Nazir Sabir, whose Alpine Club of Pakistan organized a Serbian expedition on the mountain, said at least seven people were feared dead and three others were missing after they were struck by an ice avalanche about 1,100 feet below the peak on their way back.

It was not immediately possible to reconcile the differing tolls given by Akram and Sabir.

Fatah fighters who fled from Hamas gunmen are detained at an Israeli base. They were denied asylum in the West Bank.

Abbas Rejects Troops' Asylum Plea

Palestinian president denies refuge to forces that fled from Hamas

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK | Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas on Sunday refused to grant West Bank asylum to forces who fled weekend faction fighting in Hamas-ruled Gaza, despite fears for their safety.

Abbas ordered nearly 200 fighters back to Gaza from Israel, insisting a Fatah presence must be retained in the territory, which has been controlled by Hamas since a violent takeover in June 2007. Fatah is not prepared to write off Gaza, and Abbas also fears that an entrenched Hamas there could export rebellion to the West Bank, where he rules.

Hamas confirmed it detained the first group of 32 who were sent back to Gaza on Sunday, but said it released all but five in that group.

The wrangling over the fate of the 188 Fatah refugees came a day after the bloodiest Hamas-Fatah fighting since Hamas took control of Gaza. In all, 11 people were killed and dozens wounded during a Hamas raid on a Fatah stronghold in Gaza City on Saturday.

As Hamas forces took control of the area Saturday afternoon, dozens of Hilles clan members fled toward the nearby Israeli border crossing of Nahal Oz.

"We crawled to the border, that was our solution, and I think we stayed at the border for two or three hours until the [Israeli] army let the injured enter," said Shadi Hilles, one of the wounded clan members hospitalized in Israel. KARIN LAUB AND

S. Koreans Fault U.S. in War Deaths

Commission: Findings show that U.S. forces killed civilians in '50s

SEOUL | South Korean investigators, matching once-secret documents to eyewitness accounts, are concluding that the U.S. military indiscriminately killed large groups of refugees and other civilians early in the Korean War.

A half-century later, the Seoul government's Truth and Reconciliation Commission has more than 200 such alleged wartime cases on its docket, based on hundreds of citizens' petitions recounting bombing and strafing runs on South Korean refugee gatherings and unsuspecting villages in 1950-51.

Concluding its first investigations, the 2½-year-old commission is urging the government to seek U.S. compensation for victims.

"Of course the U.S. government should pay compensation. It's the U.S. military's fault," said survivor Cho Kook-won, 78, who says he lost four family members among hundreds of refugees suffocated, burned and fatally shot in a U.S. napalm attack on their cave shelter in 1951.

Commission researchers have unearthed evidence of indiscriminate killings in the declassified U.S. archive, including a report by U.S. inspectors-general that pilots couldn't distinguish South Korean civilians from North Korean enemy soldiers. The U.S. Embassy in Seoul says it has not yet been approached about compensation. Spokesman Aaron Tarver said the embassy is not monitoring commission findings.

The commission's president, Ahn Byung-ook, said the U.S. helped South Korea in the 1950-53 war, but also "victimized" South Korean civilians. "We feel detailed investigation should be done by the U.S. government itself," he said. (AP)

Linking Gone Wild

Yahoo scrambles after inappropriate term is linked to Spitzer story

NEW YORK | It wasn't what anyone expected to see while perusing a news article.

But there, in the final paragraph of an online story about the call girl involved in the Eliot Spitzer scandal, Yahoo's automated system was inviting readers to browse through photos of underage girls.

Yahoo Shortcuts, which more frequently offers to help readers search for news and Web sites on topics such as "California" or "President Bush," had in this case highlighted the words "underage girls." Readers who

In an online story about Ashley Dupre, the call girl involved in the Eliot Spitzer scandal, Yahoo Shortcuts invited readers to browse photos of underage girls.

passed their mouse over the phrase in The Associated Press story were shown a pop-up window filled with images from Flickr, Yahoo's photo-sharing Web site.

Some of the pictures showed nothing untoward, while several captions claimed that attached photos showed underage drinking. Clicking on the pop-up window yielded more disturbing results: hundreds of images, including some of a girl or woman in pigtails, knee socks and lingerie.

The misstep, which happened in early July, was noted on a technology blog. Editors at the AP contacted Yahoo Inc.; a spokeswoman said the company quickly removed the link.

The phrase "underage girls," now added to a list of thousands of previously blocked terms, will never again generate a Yahoo Shortcut, the company said. But the incident highlights how difficult it can be for publishers to keep a tight rein on their sites in this age of user-generated content.

Internet publishers are increasingly relying on automated systems to tag phrases of interest and, in some cases, to provide links to other sites. With legions of YouTube users, Flickr photographers and anonymous bloggers posting floods of their own, largely unsupervised material, it's impossible for publishers using automation to exercise total control.

"No matter how sophisticated you make these automated systems, you're not going to make them perfect, and all you can really strive for is to tune them as you go along," said Lauren Weinstein, co-founder of People for Internet Responsibility. Still, he said, in this case, "it's pretty clear there was a lapse in terms of the quality control of Yahoo's keyword list." SAMANTHA GROSS (AP)

Fairfax to Videotape School Lunch

County will install cameras to help curb prevalent food theft

For the first time, video cameras will monitor Fairfax County high school cafeterias this fall to keep students from pilfering chicken wraps or veggie burgers in the lunch line.

The region's largest school system is turning to video surveillance, already widely used on school buses and outside school buildings, to combat what officials say has become a pervasive problem — food theft. The Fairfax school system's food and nutrition services department estimated that $1.2 million worth of prepared food was lifted from cafeterias in the last school year.

Board members decided last month they could no longer swallow such losses, given a $150 million school budget shortfall and rising food prices. They approved a one-year tryout for cafeteria cameras at Annandale, Mount Vernon and Westfield high schools and at Lake Braddock, Robinson and South County secondary schools.

Penny McConnell, director of food and nutrition services, said she hopes the cameras will curb theft and send a message to students that stealing from the cafeteria is no less serious than shoplifting from a store. "I would hate for them to make this a habit and take it into the community," she said.

Pocketing cookies, paying for one pizza while covering up another or even downing a bag of french fries before reaching the cashier are common in school cafeterias, though there is little hard data documenting theft, said Erik Peterson, spokesman for the School Nutrition Association, a nonprofit based in Alexandria. He said a handful of school systems have used cameras, both real or pretend, to address the problem.

Employee theft in cafeterias is a more publicized crime. But McConnell said the $1.2 million loss in Fairfax counts only prepared food that went out on the serving line, not food that may have been stolen after hours. The loss total is significant for an annual food department budget of $74 million. MICHAEL ALISON CHANDLER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Md. Heat To Increase, Report Says

Coastal water levels are also expected to rise in coming years

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | A climate-change report prepared for state lawmakers says temperatures and sea levels are expected to rise in Maryland in coming years.

Donald F. Boesch, the president of the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science and the editor of the report, says the good news is that Maryland will have winters like Charleston, S.C.

The bad news is summers will be like those in Phoenix, but with higher humidity.

The report was produced for the state Commission on Climate Change and was researched and written by a committee of 19 scientists from Maryland universities, the U.S. Geological Survey and two environmental groups.

Shari T. Wilson, Maryland's environment secretary and the chairwoman of the climate commission, says the panel expects to present possible policy responses to the governor this month. (AP)

Memos Detail Response to Shooting

Virginia Tech still must release information on gunman, officials

A week after the Virginia Tech killings, as a still-numb campus braced for classes to resume, university officials lined up a cast of speakers for the media: four students, three faculty members and a counselor.

Each described the significance of that day. They spoke about not being defined by the April 16, 2007, tragedy and the desire to move toward the future. They, according to a memo tucked away in the University Relations office, "followed the coaching session instructions beyond excellent."

The memo is one of about 20,000 documents recently released following a Freedom of Information Act request. In a June 17 settlement, attorneys for the victims' families and attorneys for the state and university agreed that thousands of documents pertaining to the shooting and the school's response would be made public.

University officials said that they have until mid-December to create a public archive of the documents and that it will eventually include the academic records of student gunman Seung-Hui Cho and e-mails from senior university officials. What has been released so far is five cardboard boxes brimming with papers that contain little information about Cho, the 32 students and faculty members he killed or how top university officials responded. FOOTBALL | Though the Green Bay Packers say Brett Favre has put them in a difficult situation, they're prepared to welcome him back.

The NFL announced Sunday that Favre will be reinstated and added to the Packers' active roster on Monday. Commissioner Roger Goodell had held off on granting Favre's request for reinstatement for nearly a week, hoping Favre and the team could resolve their standoff.

ing, Brett is coming back," said team president and CEO Mark Murphy. "We will welcome him back and turn this situation to our advantage."

The reinstatement will become effective at 1 p.m. EDT Monday, when Favre will be added to the Packers' active roster. By reinstating Favre, Goodell is following through on a recent promise to force action.

Earlier this week, the team offered Favre a long-term, multimillion-dollar marketing agreement that likely would have kept him retired. But Favre's decision to report to camp makes such an agreement less likely.

A trade remains a possibility.

"Frankly, Brett's change of mind put us in a very difficult spot," Murphy said in a statement released by the team. "We now will revise many actions and assumptions about our long-term future, all predicated on Brett's decision last March to retire." (AP)

Bryant's 19 Lead U.S. To Victory

BASKETBALL | Russia contained the speedsters. Controlled the backboards. Everything a team needs to do to beat the United States.

Except stop Kobe Bryant.

Bryant provided the offense in the U.S. Olympic team's first defensive struggle, scoring 11 of his 19 points in the third quarter of an 89-68 victory on Sunday.

"They had some gaps there and I just took advantage of them. The ball found me, and I was able to make them pay," Bryant said.

"In that kind of situation where the game is kind of seesawing back and forth, we have so many weapons. It could be LeBron, it could be D-Wade; one of us is going to kick into high gear."

The sellout crowd of 14,523 at this Shanghai arena built for tennis clearly favored the U.S. team, and Bryant clearly was the fans' favorite. "It feels like home away from home," Bryant said. "It's great to be so far from Staples Center and still have so much support." (AP)

Nats Complete Sweep Against Reds

Kearns' 3 hits lead Washington to win over lowly Cincinnati

NATIONALS | For one weekend, the Washington Nationals managed to resemble a decent baseball team, an achievement made possible with the help of the stumbling Cincinnati Reds.

The Nationals completed only their second sweep of the year Sunday, jumping ahead with a four-run first inning in a 4-2 victory that followed a Reds' players-only meeting.

Rookie Collin Balester (2-3) allowed one run in 5 1/3 innings and Lastings Milledge hit his ninth home run for the Nationals, who were mired in a nine-game losing streak before outscoring the Reds 19-10 over three games. Austin Kearns had three hits against his former team.

Not counting a win in a one-game series with Atlanta on opening day, the Nationals now have two sweeps — both against fellow last-place teams. They took three in a row in Seattle during an inter-league series in June.

Reds starter Johnny Cueto (7-11) struck out the first two batters he faced, but the next five reached base.

Then Pete Orr, who had his first RBI in more than a year Saturday night, came through again by driving in Kearns with a single.

That was all Balester needed in his sixth career start. He allowed six hits and one run. Joel Hanrahan pitched the ninth for his first professional save. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Liriano Propels Twins to Division Lead Over Tribe

BASEBALL | Francisco Liriano threw six scoreless innings in his return to the Minnesota rotation Sunday, helping the Twins move into first in the AL Central with a 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Denard Span and Brendan Harris homered for Minnesota, which moved a half-game ahead of the White Sox. Chicago lost 14-3 at Kansas City.

Liriano missed all of last season after Tommy John surgery and went 0-3 with an 11.32 ERA in three starts before being sent down in April. He dominated at Triple-A Rochester, going 10-0 with a 2.67 ERA in his last 11 starts and was openly frustrated as the Twins waited until Friday to call him up. (AP)

Mariners Rally to Beat O's

Ibanez helps Seattle avoid first Baltimore home sweep since 1997

ORIOLES | Raul Ibanez's two-run single off reliever Jamie Walker capped a three-run seventh inning for Seattle, and the Mariners snapped a seven-game home losing streak with an 8-4 win over the Baltimore Orioles on Sunday.

Ibanez finished with three RBIs as the Mariners avoided being swept at home by the Orioles for the first time since 1997.

Seattle's big inning began when Baltimore starter Daniel Cabrera couldn't find the strike zone. He sandwiched walks to Brian LaHair and Yuniesky Betancourt around Jeff Clement's infield single.

That was the end of the day for Cabrera, who walked Betancourt on four pitches — just the seventh walk this season for the Mariners impatient shortstop.

Walker didn't fare much better.

Pinch-runner Miguel Cairo scored to break the 4-all tie. Ibanez then dribbled a grounder past Roberts' diving attempt and into right field, scoring Clement and Betancourt. Clement added an RBI single in the eighth.

scoreless innings for the victory, as he continues working back into form after missing more than a month with a hyperextended right elbow.

Jose Lopez hit his ninth homer of the season and Jeremy Reed drove in a pair of runs for Seattle, which had not won at home since July 18 against Cleveland, the Mariners' first game after the All-Star break. (AP)

Shin Spoils Sorenstam's Farewell

Korean takes British Open at 6-under as Swede birdies her last

LPGA | What was billed as Annika Sorenstam's farewell to the majors turned into yet another showcase for the young stars from Asia.

Hours after Sorenstam walked up the 18th at the Women's British Open to a standing ovation and closed her final major with a birdie, Ji-Yai Shin won the last major of the year by three strokes after a final round 6-under 66 on Sunday.

Shin, a 20-year-old South Korean whose 21 previous victories were all in her homeland or Japan, maintained Asia's recent domination of the majors on the LPGA Tour. In capturing her first major with an 18-under score of 270, she led an Asian sweep of the top five places.

Taiwan's Yani Tseng, winner of the LPGA Championship earlier this year, was second with a 66 and a 15-under total of 273, while Korea's Eun Hee Ji (67) and Japanese third-round leader Yuri Fudoh (71) tied for third on 14-under.

The other Asian to win a major this year was Korea's Inbee Park, who took the Women's U.S. Open.

Playing well outside her comfort zone on the Korean LPGA Tour, Shin said she had a sleepless night ahead of her final round.

"This morning I was very nervous but I focused on my game, and now I won, so I am happy," said Shin, who has received an invitation to join the LPGA Tour. "My dream's come true now."

"I was planning to play in Japan but maybe now I change my plans and play in America."

Sorenstam doesn't have to worry about that.

The Swede, who is quitting tournament golf at the end of the year to start a family, finished with a 10-foot birdie putt for a 68 and a 6-under 282, which left her tied for 24th.

"I'm going to miss it, no doubt about it," said Sorenstam, who has won 10 majors in her 14-year career. "To finish with a birdie was special. There didn't seem to be any doubt it was going in." ROBERT MILLWARD (AP)

Spurrier can only hope to match his famous father's success with South Carolina this season.

Head ball coach Spurrier has ceded play-calling responsibilities to his son, the Gamecocks receivers coach. The elder Spurrier will be in charge, but Steve Jr. will shoot the plays into his dad's headset.

Spurrier Jr. says he's excited about the chance. Both Spurriers share a wide-open, quick-strike philosophy. But Junior says he was also influenced by his time on the staff of Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops, which also featured such offensive minds as Texas Tech's Mike Leach and Kansas' Mark Mangino. (AP)

DALE ROBINETTE/COLUMBIA PICTURES

James Franco forays into comedy with 'Pineapple Express'

SWITCH | James Franco is known primarily as a dramatic actor.

His films include "Flyboys," "City by the Sea" and the "Spider-Man" movies, in which he portrayed Harry Osborn, the superhero's best friend-turned-nemesis.

But the James Dean lookalike also has a flair for comedy, as anyone who's seen the short-lived TV series "Freaks and Geeks" or the Web site funnyordie.com can attest.

So, it came as no surprise that producer Judd Apatow (the creator of "Freaks and Geeks") and his protegee, Seth Rogen (a "Freaks and Geeks" cast member) invited Franco to co-star in their stoner action comedy "Pineapple Express," being released Wednesday.

The 30-year-old plays a lazy pot dealer who ends up running from a crooked cop and a dangerous drug lord when one of his regular customers (Rogen) witnesses a murder and takes refuge in his home.

Franco hadn't acted in a Hollywood comedy for some time, though he had directed and starred in a low-budget feature called "The Ape," which Apatow saw while attending the Austin Film Festival. The producer-filmmaker caught up with Franco and suggested he and Rogen do a movie together. At the same time, Apatow had been closely working with Rogen on ideas for the stoner action comedy. After reading the screenplay, Franco figured Rogen would play the perpetually stoned dealer.

"Then," recalls Rogen, "we talked about Franco and thought, 'What if we flipped it? What if he was the stupid buddy and I was the leading hero straight man?'"

The title refers to a type of marijuana so rare that the killers easily track down the source when Rogen's Dale Denton accidentally leaves it behind after witnessing their crime. Dazed from smoking the illegal substance, Dale hightails it to his dealer's home. Soon, the two find themselves on the run.

Franco says it was fun playing Saul, a likable but mush-brained dealer who bonds with Dale over the course of their misadventure.

"I was pretty emotionally exhausted from making dramatic films," says Franco. "I found a group of guys that were really supportive of my interests."

Action sequences are mixed with lighthearted moments of male bonding, usually over a joint. Rogen assures that no actual marijuana was smoked during filming. A non-narcotic substance called Wizard Smoke substituted.

"I didn't like it, but Franco didn't have that hard of time," he says. "Franco will smoke anything," ANGELA

TELEVISION | It's easy to dismiss the CW's "Gossip Girl" as just another sexed-up, youth-oriented product to step off the TV drama assembly line.

But "Gossip Girl," which returns Sept. 1, represents a distinct step beyond "90210" and the teen dramas before it, starting with the show's sophisticated use of point of view. Its rarefied world of youthful excess and angst is observed through the eyes of a mysterious blogger, the unseen Gossip Girl. The show deftly intertwines irony with authenticity, poking fun at itself while also commenting on the voyeurism and sensationalism that drives modern culture.

The show, says co-creator, writer and executive producer Stephanie Savage, "is a story, but it's also a platform for ideas. I think people like the 'Gossip Girl' connection. The idea of people watching and talking about each other is something that's very real to their lives."

"When people say the show glamorizes teen drinking and sex, they aren't really watching the episodes," said Savage. "Not all the characters drink or have sex, and when they do, it's always put in a context. Behaviors are rooted in character. There's decision-making, regret and consequences involved."

There are certainly things I worry about," she said. "Do I wish we got better broadcast ratings? Yes. I wish they gave us more money to make the show."

But for Savage, relevance holds more importance than ratings. "For us, it's about how did you matter? Do people care and do they pay attention to what you're doing? I think the show is really succeeding in terms of getting people excited and giving them something to talk about."

FAME SCORE: Charles Durning, 85, was honored with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame Thursday, next to that of his idol, James Cagney. Durning's more-than 100 credits include "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" and "Tootsie."

Notes on a Scandal

An inveterate forger asks the world, 'Can You Ever Forgive Me?'

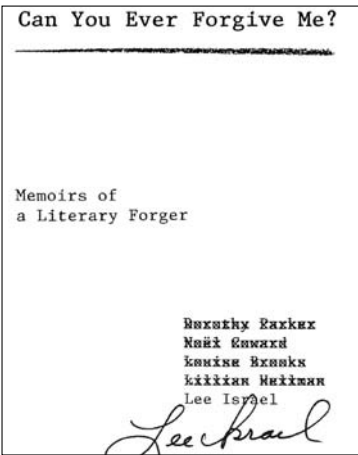

"She is a bright, talented actress," Noel Coward once wrote of Julie Andrews, "and quite attractive since she dealt with her monstrous English overbite."

Pure Coward, except that it isn't. Banged out on an old Olympia typewriter in 1991, this quote was invented by Lee Israel, the screwball literary forger of Manhattan's Upper West Side. During an improbable crime spree lasting approximately 18 months, Israel impersonated not just Coward but also Fanny Brice, Dorothy Parker, Lillian Hellman, Louise Brooks, Humphrey Bogart and a host of other major and minor celebrities in more than 400 phony letters sold to autograph and memorabilia dealers across the country.

Israel made only a modest living through her misdeeds, but she fooled a lot of people. The Julie Andrews line wound up appearing in a book of Coward's collected correspondence.

In part, Israel succeeded because she knew her territory so well. Before her career in fraud, she had been a respected celebrity biographer. Her first book, "Miss Tallulah Bankhead," received admiring reviews when it appeared in 1972.

In "Can You Ever Forgive Me?," her new memoir, Israel affects a mock-heroic voice (think Rosalind Russell in "Auntie Mame") as she describes her days of being "wined and wooed by publishers."

Her tone of amused self-confidence begins to fade, however, as she delves into her mid-life crackup. In an episode that she herself has trouble excusing, Israel stole dozens of genuine celebrity letters from libraries and archives, replacing the originals with fakes. It wasn't long before the FBI came calling.

Convicted of larceny and fraud, Israel received a light sentence of five years' probation and six months' house arrest. Noting that the judge at her sentencing had said that he never wanted to see her again "in this context," she deadpans that at least it was "not a total rejection."

She also has a good tale to tell. "Can You Ever Forgive Me?" offers a gentle parable about the modern culture of fame, about those who worship it, those who strive for it and those who trade in its relics.

"My success as a forger was somehow in sync with my erstwhile success as a biographer," Israel observes. "I had for decades practiced a kind of merged identity with my subjects; to say I 'channeled' is only a slight exaggeration."

Worship the Power That Was

One of Hollywood's longtime leading men stars on DVD

Tyrone Power was much more than an astonishingly handsome face.

From 1936 until his untimely death at 44 in 1958, Power was one of Hollywood's biggest stars, equally at home in comedy ("Love Is News"), swashbucklers ("The Mark of Zorro"), thrillers ("Witness for the Prosecution"), drama ("The Razor's Edge") and period pieces ("Lloyd's of London").

His fans can feast on his films with the "Tyrone Power Matinee Idol Collection" DVD set, coming this week from Fox Home Entertainment. Besides offering four new featurettes on the affable, romantic leading man, the collection includes 10 films he made while under contract to 20th Century Fox, including his first movie for the studio, "Girls

MANPOWER: Ava Gardner cannot resist her co-star in "The Sun Also Rises."

Dormitory," in 1936. The melodrama features Power in the last 10 minutes as a charming cousin.

The set includes numerous light-weight comedies — only Power's comedic skill saves them from obscurity — such as 1937's "Cafe Metropole," in which he plays a debt-ridden young man who must pose as a Russian prince to woo an American heiress.

Mixed in with the comedies are some terrific dramas, including 1940's "Johnny Apollo," a fast-paced story about a young man who turns to crime to help save his stockbroker father (Edward Arnold).

NO WORD-MINCING HERE: Thomas Jane has been tapped as the lead in HBO's hour-long pilot "Hung." The dark comedy centers on Ray (Jane), a well-endowed struggling basketball coach who figures out a way to use his best asset.

Work It to 'Work for Diddy'

Contestants battle to become Combs' personal assistant

ASSISTANT | Sean Combs aims to conquer the airwaves.

His latest series, "I Want to Work for Diddy," premieres at 9 p.m. tonight on VH1, adding to a pair of Combs-produced reality shows on sister network MTV, "Run's House" and "Making the Band," which returns Aug. 13.

"It's all part of my strategic plan to take over TV: Diddy TV," he said by phone on Thursday.

The new show arose from his need for a personal assistant and a realization that conventional recruitment methods weren't finding the suitable replacement.

STYLIN' 'APPRENTICE': Diddy's show is edgier than Donald's — he swears.

media that he was welcoming candidates. Then he created a competition-style TV series for choosing a winner from 13 finalists vying for the job.

On the series, a panel of judges makes the initial eliminations, Combs said, with his entering the picture toward the finish.

The candidates "had to fight to get to me," he explained. "To get to me is like getting to the Wizard of Oz. They had to prove themselves. They had to walk down the yellow-brick road."

"I Want to Work for Diddy," which he said has wrapped production, may sound a bit like Donald Trump's "The Apprentice." That's OK with Combs

"My show has a whole different style and a whole different energy," he noted. "But if 'The Apprentice' helped to open up the door for this show, then so be it."

Dupont's Checkmates

Get schooled in more ways than one at the circle's chess boards

GAMES | Tom Murphy balks at my use of the word "intimidating" to describe the chess players at Dupont Circle.

Then again, I have to remember to take what Murphy says with a grain of salt.

One of the most skillful players at Dupont, Murphy claims to know only "a little something" about chess. Having just finished a chess lesson with him, I beg to differ. To a beginner like me, Murphy's mastery of the game is nothing short of mind-boggling, and the chess tables at Dupont Circle are downright scary.

Luckily, says Murphy, there's hope for even the most clueless chess newbie — as long as you follow a few basic rules.

KNIGHT AND DAY: Newbies can learn a lot from Dupont's chess-playing regulars.

→ 1. "It's about the joy."

The experienced hands at the circle are, not surprisingly, really good at chess. You're going to lose to them. Embrace that fact and get over it before you even reach the tables.

→ 2. "They'll come, they'll play, they'll leave a deposit."

Murphy may profess to worship at the altar of joy, but he expects a little more from his customers, er, students and opponents. My chess lesson cost me $30.

GET MORE words of wisdom from chess whiz Tom Murphy at expressnightout.com

→ 3. "The more you understand, the more you're going to enjoy."

Many of the most skilled players offer lessons to anyone with some interest — and cash.

→ 4. "Don't deprive yourself of your joy for the game for your joy of arguing."

Check any bones of contention at the door. Murphy says, "arguing just for the argument's sake" gets in the way of the joy.

→ 5. "Nobody is unteachable."

Murphy is firm in his belief that he can teach anyone something about chess. "If they fail to learn, it's the fault of the teacher," he says, "not the student." ELIZABETH SIMINS

Jazz Comes Out to Play

All right, jazz-heads (jazzophiles? jazzophites?), here's one for you. For the first time in 25 years, Chick Corea and his fusion band, Return to Forever, are together again. This time, it's a quartet version, featuring Corea on keyboards, Al

Di Meola on guitar, Stanley Clarke on bass and Lenny White on drums on a world tour. Having learned a thing or two from a guy named Miles Davis, Corea established the original Return to Forever in 1972 — it then went through two lineup changes before disbanding in '77. Take the jazz fan in your life to Merriweather — he or she will thank you for it. K.E.

→ Merriweather Post Pavilion, 10475 Little Patuxent Parkway, Columbia; 8 p.m., $40-$125; 202-387-7328.

For Love or Money?

Billy Wilder directed many of the greatest movies of Hollywood's golden age. And the best part is, they were all so different! War dramas, the original aging star/young-man-on-the-make story, and the best cross-dressing comedy of all time. But my personal favorite is his sweet romantic comedy "The Apartment," about the love between a suicidal elevator operator and a number-munching nebbish. F.Z.

→ Screen on the Green, National Mall, between 4th and 7th streets; dusk, free; 877-262-5866. (Smithsonian)

Band Seeking

If a band named after a Beckett character isn't too pretentious for you, congratulations: You're a hipster. Also, you should speed over to Fort Reno — don't actually speed. Driving is a privilege, not a right — and see Exit Clov, an indie-pop-rock quintet that's rising fast. This fivesome is anchored by the singing of twin sisters Emily and Susan Hsu — yes, yet another set of petite siblings are fronting an indie band. Tegan and Sarah are suiting up for battle. F.Z.

→ Fort Reno, Chesapeake Street and Nebraska Avenue NW; 7:15 p.m., free; 202-673-7647. (Tenleytown-AU)

Milwaukee's iconic Schlitz beer makes a dramatic comeback

It's the beer that made Milwaukee famous. Now Schlitz is making the city nostalgic.

That beer with the old-time mystique is back on shelves in bottles with the original formula in the city where it was first brewed more than a century and a half ago.

Schlitz was the top-selling beer for much of the first half of the 20th century. But recipe changes and a series of problems made the beer — in many a drinker's opinion — undrinkable, turning what was once the world's most popular brew into little more than a joke.

But after decades of dormancy, the beer is back.

Schlitz's owner, Pabst Brewing Co., is re-creating the old formula, using notes and interviews with old brewmasters to concoct the pilsner again. The maker of another nostalgic favorite, Pabst Blue Ribbon, it hopes baby boomers will reach for the drink of their youth, otherwise known as “The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous.” They also want to create a following among younger drinkers who want to know what Grandma and Grandpa drank.

“We believe that Schlitz is ... one of the most iconic brands of the 20th century,” said Kevin Kotecki, president of Pabst Brewing Co., which bought the brand that dates to 1849 from Stroh's in 1999. “And there's still a lot of people who have very positive residual memories about their experience. For many of them, it was the first beer they drank, and we wanted to give it back to those consumers.”

In Milwaukee, the comeback is creating a buzz. Stores are depleted of their stock within days; they're taking names for waiting lists and limiting customers to just a few six- or 12-packs each.

People such as Leonard Jurgensen say the beer reminds them of better days. The 67-year-old, who grew up on the edge of the brewery downtown, said decades ago it seemed that everyone in the city either worked for the brewery or knew someone who did. If there was a special occasion, you drank Schlitz. Jurgensen had it on his wedding day 45 years ago.

“For many years, the product was associated with happy times, especially to people my age,” said Jurgensen, who's writing a book about Milwaukee's breweries. “As we all know, the world is not the best it can be today. We used to think those were hard times, and when we look back on them, those were the good old days.”

Schlitz's comeback has been slow, just like its fall from the top. It was tested in a few markets and

The Woodridge, Ill.-based company wants the brew to go national but is taking a slow approach, reintroducing it first in places such as the Midwest, where it was popular.

Hearing from Schlitz-thirsty consumers prompted Pabst to revive the brand, Kotecki said. A malt-liquor form of Schlitz has been available for years in cans. But fans say it's not the same.

The brew became a top seller, Jurgensen said, after the Great Chicago Fire of 1871 wiped out its competitors. It was the world's best-selling beer from 1903 until Prohibition in 1920 and regained the crown in 1934 until the mid-1950s. That's when a strike by Milwaukee brewery workers interrupted production and made way for others, like St. Louis' Anheuser-Busch Cos. Inc., to eat into Schlitz's market share. That company, which makes Budweiser and Bud Light, has held the top spot to this day.

John Thielmann, 55, of Milwaukee, says his first sip of the new Schlitz sent him back decades. He remembered drinking it while spending summers with family on Druid Lake, an hour from Milwaukee.

“That first sip was, like, ‘I remember this. This is right,’” he said.

is available in Minneapolis, Chicago and western Florida, besides Milwaukee.

Its ties to the city are deep. Schlitz began its life at a brewery founded by August Krug in 1849. Joseph Schlitz took over and opened the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. several years later.

Nostalgia could prove a driving factor in sales, Kotecki said. Pabst is certainly using it in its marketing, reusing its '60s-era advertisements urging drinkers to “Go for the Gusto” with simple maroon and gold packaging, marked with fanciful script.

'Twilight' Books

Bloggers GEORGIA CRANSTON, KALEB NATION and KIMMY WEST were online to discuss the fourth book in Stephanie Meyer's wildly popular, vampire-centric "Twilight" series about a teenage girl named Bella who is involved in a love triangle with a vampire named Edward and a werewolf named Jacob.

What made you pick up "Twilight" from the bookstore and read it?

My friend introduced me to Twilight. She and I were hanging out one night and she suddenly got really excited and was telling me "You have got to read these books!" I have never really seen someone get so excited about books, and this Edward guy sounded pretty interesting, so I figured I had better check them out. I read "Twilight" and "New Moon" in about four days and was instantly hooked. And then I had to suffer through the agony of waiting for "Eclipse" to come out.

Kaleb, what has been your favorite part of the books so far?

My favorite chapter in "Twilight" was Chapter 18, "The Hunt." It was when a lot of the vampire action started (something I probably enjoy more, as a guy).

As a reader who has been swept up in the "Twilight" frenzy only recently, I want to know your opinions on why you think the "Twilight" series has such an effect on people. What do you think makes this series so universal and so ridiculously addictive?

Well, the universal want in life is unconditional love. Any age can

"The premise is simple. If you read blogs, for the month of August, make the 'pledge' to click through from your feed reader. Those extra page views can make a big difference."

fall in love with Edward, and any girl can relate to Bella. Even some guys may love Bella, and maybe not like the gushy stuff, but the characters in the story make up for all that. It makes every girl want to be in Bella's shoes, and the only way to achieve that is by reading the books.

If you could be any character in the book, who would it be and why?

I would want to be Bella, of course! I'm not sure if I would want to be Bella if she turns into a vampire, however, because I want to grow up and have kids, and the normal deal. Getting to have Edward as a boyfriend, however, ... that I'd like.
